A COLLECTION of all the Statutes, from the beginning of Magna charta, unto this present yeare of our Lord God, 1574.
(C)

Imprinted by Richard Tottell.
An. 1574. vicesimo octauo
Iulij.

William Rastall

Serjaunt at lawe, to the gentle Reader.

Here haue ye, gētle readers, a collectiō of al the ſtatutes of England (frō the beginning of Magna Charta vnto this yere of our lord God 1574) which were before thys yeare imprinted, and which be now in force and effecte.

All the printed ſtatutes expired or repelled, or cōcerning priuate perſons, or ſome priuate places, I haue left out of this worke, ſauing that of them I haue made in their apt titles (as I thinke) a briefe remēbrance.

The reſidue of al the ſtatuts imprinted haue I put in this work (as I ſuppoſe) in their apt tytles woord for woord as they be in the great ſtatutes; only leauing out, as well certein ſuperfluous wordes, as alſo the moſt part of the preambles, for that I feared that if I ſhould haue put in all the preambles, this booke would haue growen ſo bigge and ſo thick, that it would not haue been contained in this volume. Neuertheles I haue (I truſt) putt in thoſe preambles, without whiche the bodye of the ſtatutes cannot be well perceiued.

But yet truſt not, that al the ſtatutes that I haue put at large in this booke, do ſtande in force, for percaſe ſome of them bee repelled by other ſtatutes made after, by ſpecial or general words which for lacke of leaſure I could not throughly conſider.

I haue noted in the margent of euery ſtatute certeine wordes and that fot three cauſes. The firſt, for that, that many of the ſtatutes be long & containe many ſeuerall matters, of which percaſe ye would many times gladly, ſhortlye fynde out ſome one (withour tediouſnes or ſpendinge of the time in readinge ouer the whole ſtatut) therfore by peruſing the words in the margēt, ye maye quickly conceiue, what matters be in that ſtatut, where by ye may redely finde out, the matter that ye would read of in that ſtatute.

The ſecōd cauſe is, that the wordes in the margēt well cōſide red, ſhall ſtād you in as good ſteede, as ſhould a ſpeciall calēder.

The third cauſe is, becauſe that many ſtatutes contein diuers matters, that neceſſarily were to be put in dyuers ſeuerall titles apt for thoſe ſeuerall matters, and ſo ſhould dyuers matters aptly be put in this booke twyſe or thriſe, or percaſe in mo places in their diuers apt tytles, were it not that then this booke would haue bene to bygge, therefore the woordes in the margent, do ſhortly ſhewe you thoſe ſeuerall matters apt for other tytles. And in their apt titles haue I made onely ſhort notes of relacions or refermentes, to bring you to that place in other tytles, where the matter that ye ſeeke for, is at large expreſſed.

But looke not that I haue put all the notes of relacions or referments, that might haue been gathered vppon the ſtatutes: for my time would not ſerue me, to peruſe thys booke ſo diligētly.

Nowe for that percaſe my ſelfe or the printer, hath miſtaken diuers nombers in the notes of relations or refermentes, therefore when I referre you to ſeeke in another tytle, if you fynde not your matter that ye would haue, in the number that I ſende you vnto, then ſeeke in ſome other ſtatute in that tytle, & there ſhal ye fynde the matter that ye ſeeke for.

Note that the woordes in the ſmale letter within the parentiſes () be not the wordes of the ſtatute, but my woordes planted in there, for the better vnderſtanding of the ſtatute.

I haue put euery ſtatute in the tong that it was firſt written in For thoſe that were firſt writen in lattin or in french dare I not preſume to translate into Engliſh, for feare of miſſe interpretacion. For many wordes and termes be there in diuers ſtatutes, both in lattyn and in frenche, which be very harde to tranſlate aptly into Engliſh.

And although I haue put the ſtatuts here at large, yet will I aduiſe euery ſuch of you, as ſhall haue any matter of importance concerning any ſtatute in this booke, not to truſt altogether to this booke: but read you ouer diligently the act with the preamble therof, in the great booke of ſtatutes out of whiche I tooke this. This aduiſe I geue you for two cauſes. The one, for that, that reading the preāble with the ſtatut, it ſhal many times geue you much light for the true vnderſtanding of the ſtatut: where if ye read the ſtatut in this booke without the preamble the vnderſtanding of the ſtatute may be to you oft time cōfuſed. The other cauſe is, for that, that perhaps diuers faults be eſcaped in this worke, ſome for lack of diligence of the Printer, & ſome by my default, for lacke of leyſure to conſider & aduiſedly to peruſe & ouerſee this woorke after I had finiſhed it. Vale.

¶ Anno. 7. H. 7. ca. 1. & an. 3. H. 8. c. 5 two seueral statuts, almoste wooyde for wooyde like (excepting Calcis in. 3 H. 8. ca. 5.) were made againſt Cappitaines & souldiours concerning theyr number, wages, and departing wout licence, and the triall therof, and the departing was made felony wout benefite of clergy, and Justices of peace should determine it. And after an. 2. E. 6. ca. 2. an other statute was made of like effect, and further that souldiourz shoude not sell or geue his horse & harneis: and dyuerse other things cōcerning captaines and souldiours be in these three statutes. But I put not those three statutes here at large because I thinke they were made to bee of effect but only for those kigs tymes in which they were made. For if the statute of 7. H. 7. ca. 1. were to be of effect in an other kings time, than was it in vaine to make the statute of. 3. H. 8. ca. 5. or the statut of. 2. E. 6. ca. 2. for they itj. be of like effect, saving y̆ matter of souldiourcs shoulde not sell nor geue their horses and harneis, is mor in. 2. E. 6. c. 8. than is in the other two former statuts. Tamen quere diligēter whether these itj. statutes or any of them were or be effectual in other kiges times after.
